INSPIRATION: Paralympian Wendy Smith spoke to pupils at Churchill Special Free School

Paralympian inspires school pupils

CHURCHILL Special Free School in Haverhill has launched a new Olympics-inspired teaching programme.

The 'Be the Best You Can Be' programme was started on Friday with a visit from Paralympic wheelchair basketball player Wendy Smith.

It is hoped the different activities, which will vary from class to class, will raise the children's self belief and give them additional skills.

Head teacher Georgina Ellis said: "The programme is designed to enhance our children's belief in themselves so they can aspire to better things."

"By completing the programme, our young people will benefit from higher aspirations and a clearer path of how they can realise their dreams."

The programme will last until the end of the summer term this year.

The programme began after the 2012 London Olympics as part of the Olympic Legacy.

COMMUNITY

Committee is now blooming

HAVERHILL in Bloom has more than doubled its committee membership after a meeting last week.

The group has six new committee members bringing the total to 11. It had only five before Thursday's meeting.

Ben Pumfrey remains chairman and is excited about the possibilities this new membership might bring.

He said: "We want to keep the momentum going. With new membership we can delegate tasks and take on projects presented to us."

The organisation which put together all the flower

RACHAEL MCMENEMY
@rach_mc94CN

baskets in Haverhill's town centre, including planters on Haverhill High Street, Market Square, and the roundabout outside the town's Tesco, was on the brink of closure in November because of a lack of members.

At November's AGM the group was saved from closure but a lack of permanent committee members remained a concern.

Aside from the practicalities of gardening, the lack of committee members also created issues around organising projects and applying for grant funding.

Following the rise in members Mr Pumfrey said: "We want to get stuck in and get on with what we were trying to do before November."

Haverhill in Bloom is now hoping to be able to expand its repertoire with new projects, yet to be formally decided, in the coming months.

Valerie Morton continues in her position as treasurer.

Anyone who wants to get involved should contact Valerie Morton at havinbloom@gmail.com or on (01440) 709099.

Shanghai teachers visit to give maths masterclass

A MATHS masterclass was given by visiting teachers from Shanghai to pupils from Westfield Primary Academy in Haverhill.

Wang Jan and Jin QiMore also showed their world-leading technique to more than 100 teachers who had travelled to the school from across Suffolk and Norfolk.

Westfield Primary Academy head teacher, Nicky Tyler, said: "It's fantastic, it's really wonderful to show other schools how maths is being taught in Shanghai. Pupils love it. They have really taken to this approach."

The Shanghai technique focuses on teaching basic skills and progressing quickly, while encouraging children to talk through their work.

The two-day 'showcase' was the result of an England-China partnership run by the National Centre for Excellence in the Teaching of Maths (NCETM), which aims to introduce new methods of teaching into British classrooms.

RACHAEL MCMENEMY
@rach_mc94CN

As part of the project, the deputy head at Westfield Primary, Matt Martin, travelled to Shanghai in November.

He and another teacher at Westfield, Charlotte Acheson, became the first of only four maths leaders in the county.

Mr Martin has been sharing his experience and knowledge with other schools since returning to this country.

Speaking about Wang Jan and Jin Qi visit to the school, Mr Martin said: "It has been absolutely brilliant, both for our staff in giving them new ideas and also our children who have experienced a different way of learning and a different culture."

Increasing mathematical ability is not the only bonus.

Pupils also enjoyed learning about Chinese culture during the two-week long visit.

Daniel Quarrell, aged 10, said: "It's been a wonderful experience and I have enjoyed it very much."

"We learned a lot more than just maths. We also learned how to say hello in Chinese and some other Chinese that Mr Jin taught us."

Pupils were not the only ones experiencing a new culture.

Mr Jin and Mrs Wang also enjoyed their time in the UK, finding time to go punting in Cambridge and shopping in Harrods.

Mrs Wang said: "I have had a wonderful time here. The children are lovely, friendly and very clever."

CRIME

Vandals target bollards

TWELVE solar-powered light bollards have been damaged at Pipers Close, Haverhill.

The bollards, which cost £500 each to buy and install, are managed by Stonewater Housing Association.

Stonewater installed the lights last September following requests from residents to provide extra lighting to the car parks and shared paths.

Two bollards were reported as damaged in December but since then a further 10 have also been targeted.

The first damaged bollards have been replaced.

Stonewater is considering if it can take further measures to prevent the lights being damaged again.

A spokesperson said: "The damage to them is somewhat disappointing."

"We are now working with a surveyor to assess what we can do to replace and secure them."

Anyone who may have witnessed the damage or who has information should contact police on 101 or call Stonewater on (01202) 319 119.

Grants awarded to local groups

GRANTS have been awarded to Stepping Stones Nursery and the Haverhill Family History group.

Stepping Stones was given a grant of £954.40 to buy hand dryers and a photocopier to help bring overall costs down.

Along with the town council grant, borough and county councillor John Burns allocated money from his locality budget to cover the costs of a compulsory health and safety check.

The Family History Group received a grant of £450 to finish its 'Haverhill at work project'.

The project included interviewing people from different businesses throughout the town's history.

It is hoped the grant will allow the group to display all the video clips from the project at a showcase event.

Haverhill Town Council awarded the grants at Tuesday's meeting of the Leisure and Community Committee.

Grants are awarded throughout the year.

EDUCATION

School serves a healthy mix

JASMINE WATKISS

@Jasmine_WatkissCN

A PRIMARY school is offering pick 'n' mix-style lunches to teach pupils about healthy eating.

Great Abington Primary School is two weeks into the term-long trial in partnership with Cambridgeshire Catering Service.

The way the pick 'n' mix scheme works is that children choose one item from each tray, which are colour-coded according to food group.

Types of food on offer include wraps, cucumber sticks, mini samosas, cherry tomatoes and orange segments. Students can also add extra salad and fruit.

When they arrive at school each child chooses whether they want a pick 'n' mix or hot lunch and the kitchen then makes the food to order, so nothing goes to waste.

Headmaster Guy Underwood said: "Healthy eating and fitness is a school priority. We know that what the kids eat at lunchtime will impact their ability to concentrate in the afternoon.

"Food is important to our school culture – we have an active after school cookery club and want to get our pupils interested in food and understanding what it means to be healthy.

"We also have a lot of agriculture in the area, so the trial aims to use locally grown produce."

Mr Underwood and the catering team are already noticing the benefits of pick 'n' mix lunches.

He said: "Children who were not eating a full cooked lunch are now eating more."

Cambridge Catering Service and the school's student council developed the menu together in October.

"The trial has given responsibility and independence to the pupils on the school council," said Mr Underwood.

"The catering staff are also getting feedback from the students each day and try to offer more of what they prefer.

"We think it's important to give the pupils a voice."

If the trial is a success, pick 'n' mix lunch could become a permanent fixture at the school.

Mr Underwood added: "It's early days yet, but the response from the kids is pretty good. They are enjoying being able to pick what they want each day."

Mascot 'Ziggy' the pink elephant is there to encourage youngsters to start dancing.

The project is the brainchild of town councillor Betty McLatchy who said: "I loved the idea of organising something

Plan for bedsits is withdrawn

'SPECULATIVE' plans to turn the AXA building in Haverhill into 58 bedsits have been withdrawn.

Town councillors meeting last week were concerned about the potential loss of one of the town's largest employers and the number of bedsits planned for the building.

They also said the plan was out of line with the town's master plan, aimed at bringing regeneration to the area.

At the town council planning meeting concerns were raised about 'cramming' so many bedsits into the building.

Town clerk Colin Poole said: "We are dumbfounded by the 'pack 'em in' proposal for 58 bedsits packed in like sardines. It is frankly unacceptable that legislation allows this. The government urgently needs to reconsider it, given the shameless way some landlords are exploiting it."

RACHAEL MCMENEMY
@rach_mc94CN

The plans to transform the building on High Street did not need approval from planning committees due to legislation brought in by former Communities Secretary, Eric Pickles, in 2015.

The legislation allows offices to be converted to houses or flats so long as they meet standard building and environment regulations.

Since councillors could not reject the plan, they took a unanimous vote to object in principle.

Town councillor Quillon Fox said: "It's better to object strongly and be ignored than say nothing."

Councillors also raised concerns about the potential loss of one of the town's largest employers.

Issues raised included job security and the future of businesses on High Street which rely on the footfall from the office workers.

Councillors hoped the plan would eventually fail because of logistical problems with the site.

The car park, which was included in some of the building work, is owned by St Edmundsbury Borough Council and the access road is private.

Axa, which employs 230 people in the town, has a 99-year lease on the building and still has more than half the tenancy left.

Prior to the withdrawal of the plans, an Axa spokesman said: "We are aware of the planning permission which has been detailed as speculative but it has no effect on our tenancy of the building and hence our occupation."

Earlier this month Architect firm John Finch described the application as purely speculative.

Mental health move welcome

AS part of the work we undertake across the East of England, Ormiston Families works with children and young people struggling with mental health issues. To this end, we see Theresa May's announcement about a new approach to mental health as hugely significant.

It is well documented that the provision of mental health services across the UK is inadequate and this lack of care has led to an increase in the number of children and young people suffering with mental ill health for prolonged periods of time. Through our Point1 service in Norfolk and HeadsUp service in Cambridgeshire we know early intervention in young people showing signs of mental health issues is critical.

The Prime Minister talked about focusing "on prevention as well as treatment, especially since so many adult mental health problems – which one in four of us will suffer from at any one time – begin in childhood". As a charity working on the frontline with children and young people showing signs of mental health issues, we are relieved to hear this. Early intervention, and thus prevention, is key to reducing the number of people suffering with chronic mental health issues.

The numbers used in Theresa May's speech are exactly the type of statistics we are working to reduce. "It is a tragic fact that one in 10 children in this country has a diagnosable mental health condition. The long-term effects can be crippling: children with behavioural disorders are four times more likely to be dependent on drugs, six times more likely to die before the age of 30, and 20 times more likely to end up in prison."

Mental health is without doubt one of the biggest issues facing our society today and it is good to hear the Prime Minister is keen for the Government to do more to address the problems and "not just in our hospitals but in classrooms and communities".

Through Ormiston Families' Engage Programme we work to bridge the gap between home and school life. This often involves going into schools and undertaking one-to-one sessions with young people who are struggling for one reason or another, in order that we can talk to the teachers and families about any issues the young person is dealing with. Theresa May's announcement about introducing mental health training for teachers and staff is something we wholly support and believe will help to create a step change in early intervention for young people suffering with mental ill health.

With the figures showing "over half of mental health problems start by the age of 14 and 75 per cent by 18" the school years are incredibly important. Yet most teachers will, through no fault of their own, have no idea how to recognise that a young person has mental health issues, let alone how to help that person and deal with the situation in their classroom. This often puts further strain on the parent(s) to know how to help their child and thus advise the school. When families are dealing with a child suffering from mental health problems it has an enormous impact on every member of the family. In these difficult and often dark times they need to be supported by their child's school and to know that the teachers understand their child needs special care and attention, not for instance a detention for disruptive behaviour.

We therefore believe the new trials to strengthen links between schools and local NHS mental health staff, coupled with secondary schools being offered mental health first aid training is a significant step in the right direction to improving support for young people suffering from mental ill health.

Ormiston Families works with young people and their families to support them with whatever issues they face and we therefore welcome Theresa May's focus to take action and support these young people at a critical time in their life and health.

Neutering is the answer

DO you have any idea whatsoever how many thousands of beautiful, loving dogs are being euthanised daily because there are not enough good homes to go round? Do you care? Does your organisation care?

Do you know why this is happening? It is happening because too many dogs are being bred. We could help with this problem if we brought in compulsory neutering in this country, we could lead the way.

Searching for unsung heroes

WE are searching for those unsung heroes in the community who go above and beyond what is expected of them to help support people with diabetes.

Every year thousands of people volunteer hours of their time to Diabetes UK and their efforts make a real difference to the lives of those living with the condition. The East of England Inspire Awards are a chance to thank them for their contributions and highlight how their work has had a positive impact on the lives of others.

We want to pay tribute to our incredible volunteers for the extraordinary support they give and their sheer hard work. The wide-reaching work of Diabetes UK would not be possible without their support and dedication.

From fundraising and campaigning to supporting others, there are lots of ways that volunteers help support people with diabetes.

Nominations for 2017 are now open and will close on February 17. Our winners are chosen by judging panels across the UK and will be presented with their award at a conference in the Eastern region later in the year.

HS2 political vanity project

POLITICIANS are well overdue a major reality check. I don't want to seem to be a spoilsport at the start of a new year, but the underlying fact is that things are not good for the UK.

Indeed, the £65 billion-plus and counting HS2 project is a political vanity scheme to nowhere (both Labour and the Tories guilty here), as it will not create any new industries employing hundreds of thousands of people once it is completed, just another 'expensive' railway line to London for the taxpayer to pick up the tab.

But the dire facts are that the chief economist of PwC (one of the big-four global accountants) in 2009 projected that, by 2015, the UK would have a total debt of £10 trillion (that's ten million millions) and possibly as much as £11.5 trillion.

But as UK debt has grown since 2010, and where the national debt alone has increased by £600 billion, total debt may now well be for the whole of the UK, more than £12 trillion (debt of around five times our total economic output).

The PwC-projected debt figures for 2015 were, household debt £1.9 trillion, general government debt £1.4 trillion (national debt), non-financial company debt £2.2 trillion and financial sector debt £4.5 trillion. As the nation's national debt (government debt) at Q1 of 2015 was £1.56 trillion (it was £903 billion in 2010 according to the ONS), these figures are probably now on the low side.

Indeed, all this shows is that our politicians and their astute highly-paid taxpayer advisers, know absolutely nothing really of how to create an economy that is dynamic and basically sustainable, for it is out of control, in all truth.

The problem also is that the elites who think that they know best do not realise that the answer resides within the British people themselves, and where they simply need the creative infrastructure putting in place to solve all this. Certainly our universities or Whitehall do not have the answer. Using their heads again for a change, they would see that the cost would be the same as HS2, but this would give the nation a continual dynamic future unlike a train line to economic nowhere, wherever that may be.

Give them a bright future

THE Prime Minister's pledge this week to implement new measures to improve mental health services for young people couldn't be more timely as new figures from The Prince's Trust warns that many young people are feeling trapped by their circumstances with almost a fifth (18 per cent) in the East of England saying they don't believe they can change their circumstances if they want to. The research also reveals that 13 per cent of young people in the East of England think their life will amount to nothing, no matter how hard they try.

In response to these findings and the fact that more young people than ever before are coming to us experiencing mental health issues, we are addressing an urgent need to improve provision by launching our own mental health strategy. We welcome the Government's pledge to improve these services for young people.

The Prince's Trust Macquarie Youth Index reveals that young people's confidence and happiness are at their lowest levels since the report was first launched in 2009. It paints a deeply concerning picture for a generation of young people who feel that their future is slipping away from them.

Many young people across the East of England feel desperate about their situation; it's vital that we act now if we're to help them get the right support to create brighter futures for themselves.

The most important thing we can do to empower these young people is to continue to help them find work, education or training. Now, more than ever before we need to work together to help them take positive steps and regain control of their lives.

LACKING CARE: RSPCA inspectors found 16 cats in Donna Albert's Haverhill home

RACHAEL MCMENEMY

@rach_mc94CN

SIXTEEN cats have been rescued and their owner banned by magistrates from keeping animals.

Donna Albert, 39, of Quendon Place, Haverhill, appeared for sentencing at Cambridge Magistrates' Court last week, having previously pleading guilty to two breaches of Section 9 of the Animal Welfare Act, 2006.

She admitted not providing a hygienic environment for her cats to live in or providing them with a suitable diet.

Albert was banned from keeping animals for five years, given a community order for 80 hours of unpaid work over the next 12 months, ordered to pay costs of £200 and an £85 victim surcharge.

The RSPCA said in a statement after the hearing that inspectors were called to Albert's home in June after neighbours raised concerns for the animals' welfare.

When they arrived, the statement said they found a four-week-old kitten dead in the hallway.

RSPCA Inspector Alex Coghlan said: "There were piles of food on the floor along with faeces, and one poor four-week-old kitten lay dead in the hallway – we think because her mother had got shut outside and she was unable to be fed."

"I think this was a case where the owner started with a couple of cats and then they bred and things got out of control."

"They had also all been left for five days without any kind of care."

Inspector Coghlan added there was a happy ending as the cats have since been turned over to the RSPCA and the majority have been rehomed.

CRIME

Transit vans targeted by thieves again

TWO more Ford Transit vans have been targeted by tool thieves.

On January 8 between 6pm and 3.40am a van in Ovington Place, Haverhill, was damaged when thieves broke into it.

They stole a Makita chainsaw worth £300 and a petrol powered saw worth £1,000.

Police think it is possible a crow bar-type tool was used to open the sliding doors of the van.

The following night, between 6pm and 3.50am, tools were stolen from a van on Sperling Drive, Haverhill.

Witnesses reported seeing two men driving away from the scene in a dark coloured car.

Items taken included two Milwaukee drills worth £570 combined and Milwaukee radio equipment worth £170.

Police believe these latest crimes are connected to the previous series of thefts from Transit vans.

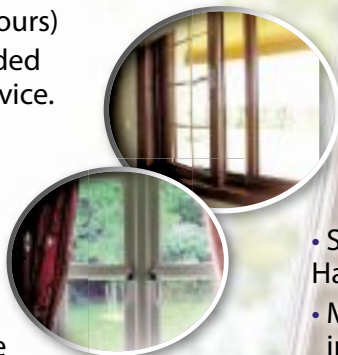

Anyone with information should call police on 101.

Police are again urging trade people to remove tools from their vans where possible. Anyone wanting advice should contact their local Support Network Team on 101.

Town set to enjoy first 'beer weekend'

RACHAEL MCMENEMY

@rach_mc94CN

BEER lovers are in for a treat following the announcement of Haverhill's first 'beer weekend'.

Haverhill Arts Centre and Nethergate Brewery, Sudbury, are partnering up for the inaugural event.

The arts centre decided to organise the 'beer weekend' after bringing in guest ales during June's performance of Brassed Off.

The town council's arts and leisure manager Nick Keeble said: "We've been playing with this idea for a while.

"We hope to bring in a wide range of people and provide something a little bit different."

Twelve beers will be involved in this first time event, several sourced from Nethergate Brewery.

Talking about the ales on offer, Mr Keeble said: "Nethergate will get us a few punchy brews and lots of different flavours, people can try something a bit new."

Each day will also have a unique aspect food wise.

Current plans include a Saturday curry night and Sunday lunch in a bun.

People and local businesses will also have the opportunity to sponsor a barrel which will help fund the event.

Another idea being considered for the event is a games lounge where people can play computer games and others.

The beer weekend is planned for April's bank holiday weekend, Friday, April 28 to Sunday, April 30.

Plan to mark end of First World War

HAVERHILL has signed up to the National Beacon Lighting project to commemorate the end of the First World War.

Although a year away, Haverhill Town Council's Leisure and Community Committee wanted to sign up early to ensure the town was included in the list of official participants.

Haverhill also took part in the beacon event to celebrate the Queen's Diamond Jubilee in 2012.

The beacon that was used then will be re-used for the First World War remembrance event.

A location for the beacon is yet to be decided, but East Town Park and St Mary's churchyard are being considered.

The 100-year anniversary on November 11, 2018, will fall on the same day as Remembrance Sunday.

Many councillors expressed their desire to organise a big event for the commemorations.

These plans include a reception at Haverhill Arts Centre.

Band life is a family affair

MAESTRO: Robert Pannell has been a member of Haverhill Silver Band since 1965

RACHAEL MCMENEMY
@rach_mc94CN

MUSIC is certainly the rhythm of life for members of the Haverhill Silver Band.

Generations of families have been part of the group, some for as long as 50 years.

Robert Pannell, 62, has been a member since 1965 and has never thought of leaving.

Robert was just presented with an award for his long-standing commitment to the group.

His 52 years of service mean he has been with the group for a quarter of their existence.

Robert said: "I started purely by chance, when I and two friends decided to join another friend who had already joined the band. I hadn't thought about playing an instrument until then."

He was honoured with a commemorative plaque.

The band also has a thriving Youth and Community Band run by Robert's sister-in-law Diane and brother Richard.

Looking back, Robert said: "The standard we now achieve is a world apart from the early 70s and I never dreamed of playing in a band with a sound such as is heard now."

"It's a great hobby and very rewarding."

Mark Ager, the band's conductor of 14 years has also followed in family footsteps.

LONG HISTORY: The band in 1933 (above) and (below) performing in 2015 at the band finals in Cheltenham.

His dad, Les, had been the band's conductor for 30 years.

Les kick-started a period of development in the late 70s to raise the band through the national ranks.

The rankings are similar to a football league with promotions and demotions annually.

As a result of the initial development the band has risen from a section four ensemble to one in the top national section.

Shoppers help to catch thief

RACHAEL MCMENEMY
@rach_mc94CN

A THIEF returned to Haverhill's Poundstretcher store wearing a coat he had stolen from there the day before, to attempt to steal again.

But this time, Luke Grantham, of no fixed address, was recognised by staff and with the help of the public was caught.

Grantham, 24, pleaded guilty to eight charges at Ipswich Magistrates' Court on Tuesday and was given a 10-week prison sentence. He was also in breach of a previous eight-week suspended jail term which was added to his sentence.

Grantham visited the Poundstretcher store on Jubilee Walk three days running, on Saturday and Sunday January 14 and 15 and again on Monday, stealing food, drinks and coats.

Staff were able to identify him on Monday because he came into the store wearing a green bomber jackets he had stolen the previous day.

Store manager Claire Sellingham said: "The management team had looked at CCTV so we could recognise him. When he walked in on Monday he walked right up to me and my deputy, he was even wearing the coat he stole the previous day and the same clothing."

Ms Sellingham and her deputy, Moez Ayari, confronted Grantham who made a dash for the door.

But sales assistant Sharon Gosling blocked the doorway, causing Grantham to turn and run for the main entrance. Members of the public then leapt into action, pushing him into the baskets at the front of the shop.

Ms Sellingham doesn't know the names of the members of the public who helped, but wanted to thank them for their intervention. She said: "It was brilliant."

Projects to get £340k funding

ST EDMUNDSBURY Borough Council and Forest Heath District Council will provide funding grants of more than £340,000 to help tackle domestic abuse and rural isolation.

The Community Chest funds will be invested in 17 projects for 2017/18 with the focus on helping families to become more resilient.

This comes after the publication of the NHS Sustainability Transformation Plan (STP) for Suffolk and North Essex which looks at how society will cope with an increase in long term health conditions associated with people living longer.

A council spokesman said: "If we can build more fences at the top of the cliff it means fewer ambulances are needed at the bottom. We see this money very much as an investment in to our communities. Whether it is giving families the tools to break a perpetual cycle of domestic violence, or helping elderly residents keep active and their minds sharp, these projects demonstrate how the council, through a relatively low level of funding, can invest in helping organisations make a major difference to the lives of residents and families in our communities. Not only that, but by working to address issues at an early stage before they become bigger societal problems. We are already leading the way in developing communities that take care of each other, which is the only way forward if the NHS Sustainability Plan is to be truly achieved."

MOTORING

Tips to keep drivers safe in icy weather

THE Driver and Vehicle Standards Agency (DVSA) has issued advice to motorists for driving in snow and icy conditions.

Ashley Bateman, of the DVSA, said: "Drivers can help to keep themselves and other road users safe by carrying out basic safety checks and following the advice in

The Highway Code about driving in winter weather."

Drivers can prepare by planning their journey.

Check the weather forecast and road conditions, consider other routes or types of transport, allow extra time for your journey, carry warm clothing, blankets, hot drinks, a torch, a shovel, and suitable footwear.

Drivers should keep their lights, windows and mirrors clean and free from ice and snow, add anti-freeze to the radiator and winter additive to the windscreen washer bottles and make sure wipers and lights are in good working order.

BYE BYE BEACH BREAKS

CITY breaks are the most popular holiday choice for British travellers, with 52% planning an urban escape in 2017, according to the new ABTA Travel Trends Report.

Findings from the last 12 months reveal an increasing number of people are swapping an annual beach holiday for multiple city breaks.

ABTA predicts that trend will spill over into the long-haul market, with destinations such as Cape Town, Tokyo, Boston and LA now within much easier reach thanks to routes operating with Boeing's faster, more fuel-efficient Dreamliner.

Could Tokyo be the destination for your next city break?

FREE WI-FI ON THE BEACH

SEVERAL beach destinations worldwide champion mobile-free zones, lauding the value of the digital detox.

But Levante Beach in Benidorm is taking the very opposite approach, by allowing sunbathers to Instagram endless selfies with free Wi-Fi access.

Mirador del Castillo, the castle viewpoint overlooking the Spanish city's two beaches, and municipal centre El Torrejo will also be offering the service.

It's easy to see why the Maldives is the ultimate destination for honeymooners and couples looking for a romantic getaway. It is just ridiculously beautiful.

From the gorgeous white sandy beaches, to the glowing turquoise water, this magical part of the world really is paradise.

The luxurious JA Manafaru island resort – at the northern tip of the stretching archipelago which makes up the Maldives – is no exception.

With unbelievable villas, a gorgeous spa, fantastic food and incredible personal service, the resort is the place to go if you fancy a week or two of pure indulgence and living like a celebrity.

From the moment you arrive at Male International Airport, 320km away from the resort, you are treated like royalty by the staff.

Handing over my luggage I was soon whisked away to the executive lounge to wait for the thrilling seaplane ride to the island.

The spectacular 75-minute flight is a treat from start to finish, with patches of bright coral reef and green islands splattering the deep blue sea below.

Landing at the jetty, it took me a while to get my head around where I was. I appear to have arrived in a tropical wonderland.

The 35-acre private island contains 47 water villas, which stretch out along jetties at either end, 22 beach bungalows, and a selection of grand suites for those really wanting to splash the cash.

For the true Maldivian experience I was staying in one of the fantastic water villas.

Huge windows provide stunning views of the Indian Ocean which stretches out into the blue horizon. There is also a private sun deck and swimming pool where I spent many hours sunbathing and gazing into the beautiful blue lagoon.

You could spend your whole stay in your villa – which is possible thanks to the well-stocked mini-bar and optional in-room dining – but there is a whole tropical island to explore.

Getting around it couldn't be easier either by foot, complimentary golf buggy rides or by mountain bike.

The resort's large infinity pool, built out above the ocean, allows you to lounge away your days looking out to the sea and remote desert islands.

Another lagoon-like pool, hidden away among the trees in the centre of the island, is a great place to take a rest in the shade.

But after travelling all this way it would be a shame not to enjoy the crystal clear ocean and stunning white sandy beach which encircles the island.

Grabbing a snorkel from the watersports centre you can explore the resort's impressive house reef which is brimming with parrot fish, large groups of striped large-eye bream, colourful clown fish, angelfish, turtles and stingray.

If you fancy staying above the waves then you can enjoy a sunset cruise on a traditional dhoni – with a glass of prosecco in hand.

Simply stunning island getaway

SIMON COYLE TAKES A ONCE-IN-A-LIFETIME TRIP TO THE MALDIVES

To infinity and beyond: The resort's impressive pool

Watching the sunset over the Indian Ocean while dolphins jump out the water nearby is a spectacular way to end a day.

After all this exhausting sunbathing and swimming, a few hours of pampering is in order.

JA Manafaru has perhaps one of the most stunning spas you will ever see, offering a range of treatments including Maldivian massages, aromatherapy, facials, and anti-ageing treatments for men, women and couples.

The resort also boasts an impressive seven restaurants which serve breakfast, lunch and dinner. The quality and choice of the food is absolutely superb.

The White Orchid serves tasty Asian-fusion cuisine, with the Ocean Grill dishing up some of the freshest seafood you will ever try.

For long lazy lunches in the sun you can also try the scrumptious Italian cuisine on offer at Andiamo Bistro, or grab a sandwich or seafood roll at the pool-side Infinity Bar.

The Kakuni restaurant also serves one of the finest breakfast and dinner buffets I have seen, with an unbelievable choice of hot and cold food. Fancy a freshly cooked curry at 10am? Then go for it, you are on holiday after all.

For the ultimate romantic meal you can pay a little extra to have a private candlelit table set up on the beach so you can dine under the stars.

But it is the service which is one of the most impressive aspects of staying at JA Manafaru.

If there is anything you need your friendly villa host is at the end of the phone, the villas are cleaned twice a day while you are out and at meal times your glass of water (and wine) seems to magically refill itself thanks to the ever attentive waiters.

The Maldives is not a cheap place to visit and for many of us is a dream destination.

But if you are planning that ultimate once-in-a-lifetime holiday or want a honeymoon to truly remember, then you should definitely stay in the luxury island paradise that is JA Manafaru.

UK Car of the Year hails top ten after first round

CARS from 10 different manufacturers have been hailed best-in-class after the first round of voting in the UK Car of the Year Awards 2017.

The list includes more honours for Jaguar's fast-selling F-PACE SUV and wins for the first time in the awards for Hyundai, SEAT, Renault and Toyota.

The shortlisted models, selected by a panel of 28 of the nation's leading motoring writers, will now go forward to the final round where the winner of the UK Car of the Year will be announced on February 24.

Winning their first UK Car of the Year Awards were Hyundai, Toyota, Renault and SEAT.

In the Best Small Hatch class, the Hyundai IONIQ beat off stiff competition to win, while the latest generation of Toyota's Prius was voted Best Family Car.

Renault's Scenic/Grand Scenic has been named Best MPV, and in the popular category of Best Crossover the SEAT Ateca came out on top.

The UK Car of the Year Awards 2017 also proved fruitful for two German manufacturers, as Mercedes-Benz and Porsche claimed two prizes apiece.

In the Best Executive Car category, the Mercedes-Benz E-Class took top spot, while the S-Class Cabriolet was hailed as Best Cabriolet.

The Porsche pairing of the 718 Cayman and Boxster were voted Best Coupe and Best Sports Car respectively.

After winning the title of Best Luxury Car in 2015 with its Ghost, Rolls-Royce once again triumphed in the category with the Dawn.

At the other end of the driving spectrum, Ford reclaimed the Best Performance Car crown with the Focus RS, having previously won the category in 2014 with the Fiesta ST.

Best Estate Car was judged to be Volvo's V90 and the new Large Crossover category was won by the Jaguar F-PACE.

The full list of UK Car of the Year Awards 2017 category winners is:

ON SALE MARCH: The Black Edition

Honda's awesome Civic Type R special

HONDA has revealed a special edition of its Civic Type R hot hatch. The Black Edition, which is limited to just 100 units, is designed to commemorate the last of the current-generation Civic Type R hatch. These 100 cars will be the final vehicles to come off the production line before the next model begins production.

Honda's new Civic is being built at the firm's factory in Swindon, and is due to go on sale in March. The all-new Civic Type R, meanwhile, is expected to enter UK dealerships in the second half of this year.

The Black Edition has certain visual changes to help differentiate it from the standard car, such as red rear wing end plates, while red accents are used throughout the cabin.

Pricing is based on the existing GT model, with the Black Edition retailing for £32,300.

Powered by a 2.0-litre turbocharged petrol engine, the Civic Type R Black Edition produces 306bhp and 400Nm torque.

Have we reached peak technology with robot cars?

FOLLOWING its consultation with the insurance industry, the government has published plans on how insurance would work with driverless cars of the future.

In a consultation process which included the AA, the plans have been developed as more cars with driver assist features are coming on the road.

Michael Lloyd, the AA's director of insurance said: "The proposals reflect the AA's view that compulsory insurance should be extended to driverless cars."

"This single insurer model will ensure that in the event of a collision, the not-at-fault party will be properly compensated in the way that motor insurance works now."

"Many questions remain to be resolved but this principle will allow for smooth handling of claims immediately after a collision and the question of liability can be sorted out in the background."

"The fact remains that there are issues relating to where liability will ultimately lay, especially if there is some kind of fault relating to the software operating the vehicle."

The proposals permit insurers to develop policies in a competitive

MIKE SCIALOM
@CambridgeWheels

market and will form part of the planned-for Modern Transport Bill, which will set out regulations for driverless and automated vehicles.

Says Lloyd: "The insurance market is changing very fast. Insurers and brokers need to be ready to meet the new challenges that automation presents."

The AA is already trialling a connected car system that monitors on-board systems as well as driver behaviours with 10,000 units installed in AA members' vehicles.

"This is the kind of technology that will form the basis of insurance in the future – whether cars are in driverless mode or being driven."

"It's offering some very exciting prospects that the AA is certainly well equipped to meet."

The AA quizzed its members on their willingness to accept driverless technology and it found that 65 per cent enjoyed driving too much to consider using a driverless car.

"However the concept is becoming increasingly accepted. Although I believe the widespread use of driverless cars is at least a decade away, it offers tremendous opportunities for many people, not least those making long journeys and older drivers who still need to maintain their independence but would otherwise be forced to hang up their car keys."

The ten-year outlook could be disputed. Insurer Adrian Flux believes that the driverless era in the UK could be nearer, and points to three factors accelerating the speed of progress in the sector:

1. Motorway Tests: There have been reports that a section of the M6 has been earmarked for tests by the Ministry of Transport.
2. Volvo, Ford and Nissan have indicated they want to trial their driverless vehicles in the south of England this year.
3. More and more cars have driver assist features.

Set against this, a US AA report found that 80 per cent of US drivers don't trust driverless technology and wouldn't want to own such a vehicle.

So it could be that the ten years before the driverless era really begins that the AA refers to may reflect the fact the time it will take UK drivers to accept the idea – rather than the time it will take for the technology to get up to speed.

...meanwhile
Volvo insists

first, and not technology

VOLVO IN ACTION: Driverless car being tested in California. Inset: Family

VOLVO Cars, the premium car maker, has revealed its distinctive approach to developing autonomous cars with the introduction of a family of four at the Detroit Motor Show.

The Hain family, from Gothenburg in Sweden, are the first people chosen to take part in a real-life autonomous drive research program using real cars, in real traffic.

"We do things differently at Volvo Cars – we always have," said Hakan Samuelsson, President & CEO, Volvo Car Group. "Our main focus has always been on people and making their lives easier. Technology should improve the consumer experience making mobility safer, sustainable and more convenient."

Volvo Cars believes that in the rush to deliver fully autonomous cars, many car makers are forgetting the most important ingredient: the people that will use them. Volvo's unique approach is to define the technology based on the role of the driver – not the other way around."

BUSY: Rolls-Royce sales up 6%

Rolls-Royce confirms base will stay in UK

ROLLS-ROYCE has confirmed it will remain based in the UK after achieving the second-highest sales figures in its history.

The 113-year-old brand delivered more than 4,000 vehicles to customers last year – 6 per cent more than in 2015.

According to the BMW-owned company, sales grew by 26 per cent in the UK, while the Chinese market rose 23 per cent and sales in Japan were up by 51 per cent.

The USA, however, remained the brand's largest market, with sales there rising by 10 per cent.

BMW's latest 5 Series is named Car of the Year

THE new BMW 5 Series has been named car of the year at the What Car? awards.

The latest model of the luxury mid-size car was praised for being more efficient than its predecessors, having "extraordinary" high-speed stability and featuring "one of the best systems in the world" for providing infotainment.

Editor Steve Huntingford said: "The BMW 5 Series is no stranger to success at the What Car? awards."

"It's something of a dynasty that has always stood for excellence, but the latest model moves things on again

NO STRANGER TO SUCCESS: The new 5 Series shown here has emerged from 'something of a dynasty that has always stood for excellence', according to 'What Car?' judges in all the areas that matter most to buyers."

Among the other cars to scoop prizes at the 40th annual What Car? awards, held in central London, was the new Skoda Fabia, which won the small car category, while the latest Renault Zoe earned the title of best electric car.

Championing manufacturers who have made progress in safety and technology, What Car?

and Thatcham Research presented the Safety Award to the Toyota Prius, while the Peugeot 3008 was awarded the Technology prize, sponsored by Nexcel, for its i-Cockpit interior layout.

Putting the vote to What Car? readers, the Honda Civic Type R was named the most exciting car due to be launched in 2017 in the Reader Award category. The latest version of this legendary hot hatch will be made in Britain when it arrives in the latter half of the year and beat the Jaguar I-Pace and Lexus LC 500 into second and third place respectively in the poll.

Football

HAVERHILL Borough continued their impressive form in the Thurlow Nunn League, First Division with a 3-0 win at home to Woodbridge Town.

Hosts Borough made a bright start and it took just two minutes for them to take the lead.

A long-range shot from Ryan Phillips was parried by the Woodbridge goalkeeper but from the resulting corner Gareth Thomas powered a header home to score his second goal in the last three games.

The visitors rallied, and came close to equalising in the 10th minute when George Bowman hit a powerful cross that somehow eluded everyone before being cleared.

Craig Pruden was denied by the Woodbridge keeper as Borough pushed for a second goal, and Jarid

In-form Boro chop down Woodbridge

Robson only just missed the target with an attempted lob.

The lead was eventually doubled in the 26th minute when Charlie Holmes beat the offside trap and calmly stroked the ball into the net beyond the onrushing keeper.

Borough stopper Paul Walker was finally tested just before the end of the half as he made a good save from Matthew Mackenzie.

The second half continued in similar vein to the first, with Ryan Swallow volleying just wide after Pruden's impressive play on the wing.

The result was settled on the hour, though, when Rory Bone made it 3-0 after good work by Aaron Forshaw and Pruden.

Walker was forced into making another save late on, but Borough comfortably saw the game out to claim another good win.
